Community Foundation for Greater New Haven, active in his church and manages a baseball team in the West Haven Twilight League.

Arrigoitia, like his mother, was born in New York City. His maternal grandparents came to the United States from Puerto Rico in the 1930s; his father migrated from Puerto Rico as a young man. Arrigoitia returned to Puerto Rico with his parents and grew up there, moving to Texas when he was 19, and eventually had a successful, 30-year career in sales. He returned to the East Coast, where he joined Univision.

Brown was born in Lima, Peru, and came to live permanently in the United States in 2007. She was accepted at Housatonic Community College at the age of 16 and earned an associate degree with honors in 2009. After taking a year off, she was accepted at Albertus Magnus College, where she is working toward a bachelor's degree in English with a concentration in creative writing and a minor in business.
