Athletics at Albertus: On a Mission

The Albertus Magnus Mission and Strategic Plan are the drivers for everything the College does. By tying the mission statement to the strategic planning process, every element of the plan—every initiative, every implementation—further the institution’s goals. In this way, individual departments, as well as members of the strategic planning teams, forge a comprehensive approach to the future.

One such department is Athletics. Keying off the College’s Strategic Plan, the department team, led by Athletic Director Jennifer Pacelli ’01, MSM and MBA ’06, has looked at how it can add value to the institution and fulfill its vision. The results are a framework for the future of athletics at Albertus.

Inspiration for the vision comes from 2 Timothy 4:7—“I have competed well; I have finished the race; I have kept the faith. From now on the crown of righteousness awaits me...”

Vision:

The Albertus Magnus College Athletic Department strives to cultivate an atmosphere in which student-athletes develop the skills necessary to live a fulfilling life through the lessons learned during competition.

Mission:

- To serve the student-athlete in providing an environment in which the development of leadership, communication and organizational skills are fostered in preparation for the 21st century workplace
- To promote a sense of ethical conduct and fair play through sportsmanship during and after competition
- To ensure that coaches understand their role as educators and to that end will motivate and encourage student-athletes to excel in their sport and beyond
- To comply with all NCAA, Great Northeast Athletic Conference and institutional regulations to ensure compliance with all regulatory bodies

The athletic administration’s goal is to encourage student-athletes to attack every aspect of their lives with the same passion they bring to their particular sport, to compete well and to realize a fulfilling life by searching and finding veritas.

Athletics is updating its records for alumni-athletes.

Visitors from Chimbote, Peru, Tour Albertus Magnus Campus

The Dominican Sisters of St. Mary of the Springs, who extended their mission to Chimbote, Peru, in 1966, recently sponsored the visit of two teachers from the village to observe English and Spanish classes at Albertus and other educational institutions. While in New Haven, Violeta Calderon, left, and Iliana Arnaiz, who teach English as a Second Language at Mundo Mejeor High School in Chimbote, met with President Julia M. McNamara; they also observed ESL classes at the Springs Literacy Center, sponsored by the Dominican Sisters in New Haven, and visited the East Haven Literacy Center.

Visit the St. Joan of Arc Exhibit, The Knights of Columbus Museum New Haven, Saturday, June 23, 2007, 10:00 a.m.

The Knights of Columbus Museum will present an exhibit celebrating the cultural legacy of the French medieval heroine Joan of Arc (c. 1412-1431) from May through Labor Day 2007. Joan's extraordinary life has inspired many, and her image has been appropriated for a variety of causes during the centuries since her death.

First presented at Washington's Corcoran Gallery in November 2006, the exhibit focuses on the historical figure as well as the manner in which Joan of Arc has been portrayed through time.

The self-guided tour is free and open to all members of the Albertus community. Join us at 10:00 a.m. for an overview of the exhibit presented by a museum staff member. To reserve your spot, please call the Office of Alumni Relations & Special Events at 203-773-8502 or e-mail alumni@albertus.edu. For more information, please visit www.albertus.edu. For directions to the museum and parking information, please visit www.kofc.org.

The College held a reception April 9 to celebrate the acceptance of members of the Class of 2011, who must now make their decision regarding attendance. More than 150 high school seniors and family members attended the event at Rosary Hall. Dr. John Donohue, vice president for academic affairs; Meredith Berry, Student Government Association president and a member of the junior class; and Richard Lolatte, dean for admission and financial aid, spoke.

Several groups, like the one shown, took tours of the campus; faculty, staff and current students were available for questions and conversation.

The Big Read

New Haven's International Festival of Arts & Ideas is one of 72 organizations across the country to receive a grant for participation in The Big Read—an initiative of the National Endowment for the Arts in partnership with the Institute of Museum and Library Services and Arts Midwest to restore reading to the center of the American culture. The Big Read—New Haven is a collaboration between the Festival and the New Haven Free Public Library. The book selected for community reading here is Harper Lee's novel, "To Kill a Mockingbird," with its compelling issues of race, class and ethics.

Throughout the city for eight weeks—culminating in the June 9 opening of the International Festival—the New Haven Public Library, schools, libraries, reading advocacy groups, senior centers, newspapers, colleges and universities will support The Big Read with community events and activities focused on "To Kill a Mockingbird." The Albertus kick-off occurred March 28 when the freshman Honors English class took part in an inter-generational discussion of the book with residents at Whitney Center, a retirement community in Hamden.

Helping to facilitate the session were Professor Deborah Frattini, chairperson of the English department; Dr. Sean O'Connell, academic dean for the undergraduate day program; and Maria Levinson, chairperson of Whitney Center's book discussion group.

Students participating were: Alicia Anderson, Mallory D'Alessandro, Kelsey Desrosiers, Elizabeth Domack, Emily James, Megan McGarry, Alain Munley, Jaclyn Murray, Lindsay Robbins, Alexandra Shaheen, Serena Valdetaro, Susan Vileta and Tiffany Williams.

On May 2, the Albertus community will take part in The Big Read-In at the College's Library in Rosary Hall beginning at 10 a.m. Each participant will read aloud for 10 minutes from "To Kill a Mockingbird."

Emily James, Roslyn Straus, Mallory D'Alessandro and Maria Levinson got to know each other at the Big Read discussion of "To Kill a Mockingbird" at Whitney Center.

Rita Yedlin and students Megan McGarry, Alain Munley, Lindsay Robbins and Kelsey Desrosiers share thoughts about Atticus Finch, Jem, Scout and other favorite characters in the book.

Tagliatela School of Business and Leadership Speakers Series

Marie Cox

On April 23, The College's Tagliatela School of Business and Leadership presented a Speaker Series program by Dennis N. T. Perkins, Ph.D., on what it takes to be a great contemporary leader. The talk, based on his book, "Leading at the Edge," examines the extraordinary two-year journey to Antarctica of explorer Ernest Shackleton and the crew of the Endurance. "Leading at the Edge" is the first book to view this remarkable story of survival through the lens of business. The event, which was free and open to the public, included a reception and book signing. Perkins is shown at a Greater New Haven Chamber of Commerce event last year for which the College was a sponsor.

Rosanne Zudekoff '60

The College's Tagliatela School of Business and Leadership on March 29 was host and sponsor for a Greater New Haven Leadership Center program featuring Jeffrey Sonnenfeld, whose latest book is "Firing Back: How Great Leaders Rebound after Career Disasters." Sonnenfeld is senior associate dean for executive programs at the Yale School of Management, founder and president of the Yale Executive Leadership Institute and author of six earlier books on leadership. The Leadership Center is a program of the Greater New Haven Chamber of Commerce; its executive director is Patti Scussel '89.

- Rosette DuBois, regional director for the New Dimensions Stratford campus since 1999, has been appointed executive director for the School for New Dimensions. She joined the program in 1997 as a faculty member; she holds a bachelor's degree from Westfield State College and a master's degree in organizational management from Central Connecticut State University.
- "Last Survivors"—a compilation of the last living persons of famous shipwrecks, natural disasters, movie casts, wars and expeditions, among others—written by Robert Hubbard, associate professor of management information systems, was recently featured on an edition of National Public Radio's "The Engines of Ingenuity," a series about human creativity. Host John Lienhard said the book is a way to "link then with now."
- In January, ARTS!, the monthly newspaper of the Arts Council of Greater New Haven, interviewed Dr. Donna Kaiser, director of the Master of Arts in Art Therapy program, the only one in Connecticut. A member of the Art Therapy Association's research committee, she is working with the group to petition Congress for research funding to test art therapy interventions with veterans who are returning from Iraq suffering from post-traumatic stress disorder.
- On March 6, the College's English Club sponsored its third annual Faculty Authors Reading. Dr. John Donohue, vice president for academic affairs, read selections from his novels: "Sensei" and "Deshi"—originally published in hardcover by St. Martin's Press, and now in paperback by NAL; Dr. Paul Robichaud, assistant professor of English and director of the Master of Arts in Liberal Studies program, shared some new poems and read from his five-part poem "At Pentagoët," published in The Hudson Review in 2005; and Charles Rafferty, lecturer in English, read from pieces in "The Man on the Tower" (University of Arkansas Press), "Where the Glories of April Lead" (Mitki/Mitki Press), "During the Beauty Shortage" (M2 Press) and "A Less Fabulous Infinity" (Louisiana Literature Press).
- Brett Colavolpe '07 is among 20 individuals profiled in "Faces of Influenza," a book published by the American Lung Association as part of its efforts to increase awareness of the importance of annual vaccinations against influenza for members of certain high-risk groups. Colavolpe, a student-athlete who plays soccer, has type 1 diabetes and knows first-hand how serious a bout with influenza can be.
- Dr. Mark Barreuther, associate professor of biology and chair of the Department of Biology and Chemistry, was a judge at the New Haven Public Schools Science Fair in March. Sara Azam '07, who completed her course work in December, also participated in the judging; she hopes to attend medical school. More than 900 K-12 students and 125 judges took in the fair. The Science Fair Project helps to promote skills in critical thinking, science process and communication.
- Suzanne Yurko Wall, director of career services, will lead a workshop at the Connecticut Counseling Association's annual conference in May. The topic is "Providing Résumé Solutions for a Blend of Traditional and Adult Students—A Case Study."
- Dr. William Schulz, director of the College's Tagliatela School of Business and Leadership, has produced his second DVD-film project, "SkySongs: Reflections from the Stratosphere." The DVD combines music and photos taken of the sky from passenger airliners worldwide, a mini-documentary on a 1929 Travel Air biplane and a set of SkySongs poems. Copies are available at the Campus Bookstore and online from www.flyelectra.com.

MSU Members Attend Diversity Conference at WestConn

Seven members of the Albertus Multicultural Student Union recently attended the 2nd Annual Diversity Conference sponsored by the Black Student Association and Public Activities Council of Western Connecticut State University. Topic for the program was "I'm Living with AIDS," WestConn President James Schmotter opened the conference by asking for a moment of silence to remember a student there who had recently died from the disease. Throughout the day there were speakers and break out sessions for role play and discussions. Back at Albertus, the students who attended shared the experience at a weekly MSU meeting. Pictured in Danbury, left to right, are (front row): Louisa Atsina and Ekuko Hizume; (back row) Erica Mastroianni, Shanda Herbert, Octavia St. Laurent, a conference speaker, Kamala Jackson, Loupu Stevens and Elizabeth Webster. Sr. Patricia Thomas, O.P., MSU advisor, also attended.

University Presses Will Release New Books by Professors Cole and Robichaud in May

This spring two well-respected university presses will release works by Susan Cole, professor of English and director of the concentration in creative writing, and Paul Robichaud, assistant professor of English and director of the Master of Arts in Liberal Studies program.

Syracuse University Press is publishing Dr. Cole's "Missing Alice—In Search of a Mother's Voice," which it describes as a "strikingly original memoir of loss, grief, and mourning exploring the ties that bind mothers and daughters in life, facing death, and during bereavement." In 1990, Dr. Cole's mother, Alice, died from cancer at the age of 78, and in this memoir she celebrates her mother's life using family letters, taped conversations and diary entries.

There will be a book signing party in New York City on Thursday evening, June 14, from 6–8 p.m. at Teachers & Writers Collaborative, 520 Eighth Avenue (between 36th and 37th Streets) on the 20th floor.

The Catholic University of America Press will bring out "Making the Past Present: David Jones, the Middle Ages, and Modernism," Dr. Robichaud's study of the British poet and painter (1895–1974) who took his inspiration from the Middle Ages.

The Press describes the book as an "innovative exploration of Jones's poetry that aims to help readers overcome challenges to a fuller appreciation of his work." The challenges refer to Jones's heavy use of medieval references and examples, which are explained in "Making the Past Present."

Alumni College Crime Scene Investigation: Fact and Fiction

The work of police detectives has been featured in the writing of authors such as Edgar Allen Poe and Arthur Conan Doyle, and continues to be celebrated today in countless police procedural novels and television shows such as CSI and Law and Order. But where does fact leave off and fiction begin? Is what we read in a book or see on the screen an accurate reflection of what really happens?

Assistant Professor Michael Geary, who directs Albertus Magnus College's Criminal Justice Program and is a retired New York City police officer and a lawyer, will discuss fact and fiction in criminal investigation. Joining him will be Dr. John Donohue, vice president for academic affairs, who writes murder mysteries.

CLASS NOTES

1932 75th Reunion June 9, 2007

1937 70th Reunion June 9, 2007

1942 65th Reunion June 9, 2007

1947 60th Reunion June 9, 2007

1948

Betty Hurley Candels, Avon, CT, reports that her great-granddaughter was born December 19 in St. Alban's, Vermont, to her son Paul's daughter. The father is safely home from Iraq.

Patricia Spang Ogden, Williamsburg, VA, writes that she is trying "to ready herself to leave her beautiful home in Kingsmill and take up residence at a triple care community." Last year her oldest daughter hosted an 80th birthday for her with 60 guests attending.

1952 55th Reunion June 9, 2007

Bette Ann Curtin Bailey, Southington, CT, teaches grade eight CCD and volunteers twice a week at two local middle schools. She and Wally have 6 children and 12 grandchildren.

Doris Savelle Breuler, Northford, CT, is retired and has more time for painting—mostly still life and dog portraits.

Joan Delaney, MM, Maryknoll, NY, returned to New York in March after five years at the Catholic Theological Union in Chicago, where she was a part-time administrative assistant at the Center for Global Ministries. In 2005 she presented a workshop on Pope Benedict's ecumenical perspective at an Ohio Dominican University seminar.

Patricia Owens, Scottsdale, AZ, has retired after 54 years in the travel industry. She is planning a world cruise on the new Cunard liner Queen Victoria in January 2008. She keeps busy hiking, skiing every year at Vail and ballroom dancing.

Angela Scimone Sledden, San Antonio, TX, is retired. She is involved with the Respect Life Ministry at St. Anthony Claret Church and the choir.

1957 50th Reunion June 9, 2007

Joan Aurilio Caliendo, Trumbull, CT, retired assistant principal of the local St. Joseph High School, is a volunteer at the Merton House Soup Kitchen in Bridgeport.

Frances Brown Caspar, Avon, CT, is a hospice volunteer and on the bereavement committee of St. Ann's Church.

Carol Alosi Euston, Washington, D.C., retired as an educator in the Washington public schools. Her hobbies are stained glass and gardening.

Barbara Fotta Kmetz, Trumbull, CT, is retired, but continues to supervise student teachers for Southern Connecticut State University on an "as needed" basis and conduct workshops for teachers.

Annette Tino Tomaino, Chatham, NJ, reports that she and several classmates—Delphine Barrett, Julia Moriarty Hayes, Nancy Francis Hopkins, Mary Keane and Barbara Fappiano Spillane—enjoyed a late September weekend in Maine. All are eager to see other class members at the 50th Reunion in June.

Mary Bernacchia Vitelli, Woodbridge, CT, is retired from teaching in New Haven, and currently tutors at the city's Adult Education Center. She also volunteers at the Hospital of St. Raphael.

Margaret (Peggy) Carr Wallace, Warwick, RI, enjoys traveling and her three grandchildren, who are 7 and 3, and 3 months.

Janet Cohen Zimmerman, West Hartford, CT, is a retired elementary school teacher.

Carole Drumm Rubley, Wayne, PA, has been re-elected to the Pennsylvania House of Representatives for an eighth term. She has eight grandchildren—all residing in the Washington, D.C., area.

1961

Angela DeFilipi Errico, Plandome, NY, sends word

Prospect Hill Society

Many loyal alumni and friends have indicated that they have included Albertus Magnus College in their estate planning. To recognize, honor and say thank you to these benefactors, the College has established the Prospect Hill Society.

If you have mentioned Albertus in your will or other estate plans, please let us know. We will list you as a Member of the Prospect Hill Society in the College's 2005–2006 Annual Report. Please contact Carolyn Behan, director of alumni relations and special events, at cbehan@albertus.edu or 203-773-8502.

that her daughter Melissa Errico appeared in the "Nothing like a Dame 2007" benefit sponsored by Broadway Cares Equity Fights AIDS for the Phyllis Newman Women's Health Initiative of The Actors' Fund. Other Broadway performers in the March 19 benefit included Jennifer Holliday, Maureen McGovern and Lynn Redgrave.

Albert of Attleboro

When Jean McInnis Robichaud '49 of Attleboro, Massachusetts, started to read her local paper not too long ago, she spotted a familiar name: Albertus Magnus. This Albertus Magnus is a 31.5-pound stray cat rescued by the city's animal shelter. The article noted that the name shelter volunteers gave the cat is a "fancy way of saying Fat Albert." Jean had a good chuckle and quickly sent off a letter to the editor to set the record straight about the real Albertus Magnus. Her letter ran in February under the headline "Something you may not know about city fat cat."

1962 45th Reunion June 9, 2007

Janice Benoit Fodero, Orange, CT, a retired school librarian, is a literacy volunteer and member of writing, book discussion, music and exercise groups. She also enjoys travel.

Dolores Falcone Sinicrope, Cromwell, CT, has been married to Bob for 43 years. They have 4 daughters and 2 sons ranging in age from 42 to 28, and 5 granddaughters and 2 grandsons, 21 to 5. She enjoys spending time with family and friends, travel, walking and needlework.

Marie Pellerin, Woodbourne, NY, writes that in July her involvement with a Japanese spiritual path called Johrei led her on a pilgrimage to the "absolutely beautiful, pristine Sacred Grounds in Japan, which are prototypes of paradise on earth." She visited three different Sacred Grounds in Atami, Hakone and Kyoto. "It was definitely a marvelous, celestial experience!" she said.

1964

Patricia Checko, Berlin, CT, and her husband, Ed Caffrey, took a 14-day cruise through the Panama Canal in January. She intends to retire from her position as director of health for the Bristol-Burlington Health District in June.

Sandra Strasburger LaPierre, Chestertown, NY, asks for prayers for her 17-month-old grandson, who was diagnosed in June with neuro-blastoma cancer.

Carolyn Burrows Verna, Trumbull, CT, sends word of a grandson born in August. She is doing some long-term substitute teaching in a local gifted student program and volunteering at the Literacy Center in Bridgeport.

1967 40th Reunion June 9, 2007

Patricia Smith Butcher, Princeton, NJ, is retired. She volunteers as a docent at Morven, a local historic house, at the Historical Society of Princeton and at the local library. She likes to read, garden, travel, crochet and do needlepoint.

A. Jean Palmer Gallinelli, Southport, CT, and her husband, Frank, have started their own computer software company, Real Data, Inc., which they run from their home with a satellite office in New Hampshire. She volunteers in a money management program run by the AARP Foundation and the Southwest Connecticut Agency on Aging, periodically does substitute teaching and serves as a Eucharistic Minister.

Suzanne Hannay, Heath, MA, teaches English at Deerfield Academy. For the 2007–2008 school year, she will teach at King's Academy, Madaba, Jordan. The school, which will open in August, is the Middle East's first co-educational boarding school and is modeled on Deerfield, from which Jordan's King Abdullah II graduated in 1980.

Sandra Gomlin Ineson, West Haven, CT, retired from customer service for campus dining at Quinnipiac University, is a hospital volunteer, aide at Arden House and on the Republican Town Committee.

Dorothy Yutenkas Mutkoski, Cheshire, CT, is now self-employed: she has a private voice studio and is active as a choral conductor, vocal adjudicator and clinician. Currently working on a children's book, she continues to be involved with the American Choral Directors Association. She and her husband, John, have three sons and eight grandchildren.

Diane Sjostedt Gowdy, Broadbrook, CT, recently retired from teaching—27 years—at East Windsor High School, works part-time at Talbot's. She now has a second grandson.

Norine Polio Honored with Excellence Award

Norine Polio '68 has received a 2006 NewAlliance Bank Teacher Excellence Award, which honors teachers who demonstrate excellence and creativity in their classrooms in the New Haven Public School System. She has been teaching English to Speakers of Other Languages for 30 years. Currently she teaches English as a Second Language to kindergarteners through fourth graders at the East Rock Global Studies Magnet School.

She received a sixth-year certificate from the University of Connecticut, a master's in Spanish literature from Southern Connecticut State University and certification in bilingual/ESOL by Boston State College. At Albertus, she majored in sociology and Spanish literature.

A participant in the Yale-New Haven Teachers Institute, Polio is a member of the Connecticut Council of Language Teachers, and a volunteer and board member for New Haven Sister Cities, Inc.

Thoughts on St. Albert

Joseph Staub '95

Last November 15th, a colleague at the school where I teach asked me about the medallion I was wearing. "This is St. Albert the Great," I said. "Patron saint of schoolchildren, students and the natural sciences, among other things. He's my patron saint and this is his feast day." My colleague, also a long-time friend, looked puzzled.

"But, Joseph," he said, "you're not Catholic."

At that point, I recalled a similar conversation that had taken place in one of my favorite places at Albertus: the reading room in Rosary Hall. In the midst of a pleasant memory, I gave my colleague an answer very similar to one given me during that conversation: "Oh, that's all right. He doesn't mind."

You see, I wear my St. Albert medal every November 15th. I also wear it whenever I participate in something important to my teaching career, such as special ceremonies, big exams, presentations at conferences, and so on. When I am not wearing it, the medallion stays in a tiny glass-fronted case on my bureau, next to other things sacred to me, such as pictures of my parents, a ribbon from my wife's wedding dress, a lock of my daughter's hair, a Swiss Army knife I carried in my soldiering days, and the piece of chalk I used to write my name on the board on my first day of teaching. That's how important St. Albert is to me.

Like many people, I didn't know who St. Albert was until I came to Albertus Magnus College. I soon found out, and I discovered that he was more than a college namesake, more than an historical personality. I first felt this in a literature class taught by Sr. Joan Frank, O.P. She would often speak about St. Albert, especially when we were reading "The Letters of Abelard and Eloise." She would say, "As our brother Abelard observed..." or "My brother Albert once said..." She talked about St. Dominic and St. Thomas Aquinas (St. Albert's pupil, who would outshine him) this way as well. I asked her, one day after class, if she really felt that close to these men who were long dead. She explained that, as a member of her Order, she felt an immediate familial connection with them, and saw their philosophies and their ministries in action every day. Her passion moved me, and I wanted to know more about the men, especially Albert, who affected her so powerfully across half-a-dozen centuries.

So, off I went to Rosary Hall to do some research. There I met Sr. Thomas Aquin, a retired librarian and wealth of knowledge about both the College and its patron saint. As I read more of Albert's work, I would have long talks with Sr. Thomas, and we grew close.

One day, in the reading room, she gave me a brass St. Dominic medal, a pewter one of St. Thomas Aquinas, and to my surprise, a beautiful silver-filled medal of St. Albert himself. She pointed to where Albert, a scientist, had his hands on two of his attributes, a microscope and a globe, and said, "This means to look at the world in detail, Joseph, but also to see the world as a whole."

I was almost speechless with gratitude, but I managed to stammer out, "Sister, these are beautiful. But you know I'm not Catholic, right?" She laughed and said, "Oh, my boy, they don't mind!" It was a powerful moment in the presence of a wonderful soul.

Sr. Thomas Aquin is dead now, and I live a long way from Rosary Hall. But I still read St. Albert from time to time, and I wear his medal when I especially need his blessings to aid me in my work. And someday, I'm going to Cologne, Germany, to where St. Albert lies. There, I will lay my medal on his sarcophagus and pray for three things: that the soul of Sr. Thomas Aquin find both rest and joy; that all who pass through Albertus Magnus College be inspired by its namesake's life and work; and that I, like him, will always be a teacher whose pupils go on to greatness. I know St. Albert will hear my prayer, and that he won't much mind if I'm not Catholic. Sr. Thomas Aquin told me so.

Joseph Staub, resource specialist teacher at Thomas Starr King Middle School in the Los Angeles Unified School District, teaches special education students in grades 6,7 and 8.
